KAIXIN Insert

A

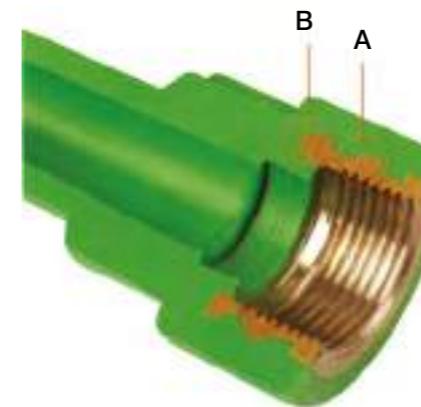

B

Comparing with conventional inserts KAIXIN brass inserts have following special features:

Swallowtail form of groove on the outer side of KAIXIN inserts. This form of groove can prevent leakage due to expand or contract of the materials because of temperature change.

New groove added on the inner side. With this groove the connection strength will be increased and anti-leakage function will be improved.

Conventional Insert

Knurled screw thread by KAIXIN male inserts. With the help of this processing sealing band, for example teflon tapes, can be banded on the thread much tighter than before. The installation quality and efficiency will be increased.

Rough surface connected with plastic. Instead of smooth surface by conventional inserts rough surface of KAIXIN inserts has benefit to increase the connection strength.

You can choose when you order: KAIXIN inserts or conventional ones
